TALLAHASSEE, FL -- A milestone was marked yesterday as the one millionth sex offender e-mail alert was sent out in Florida.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement's Florida Offender Alert System sends e-mail alerts when registered sex offenders or predators move into a neighborhood or within a radius of any other location designated, such as a school, workplace, friend or relative's house.

Along with these alerts, subscribers can choose to track an offender or predator and receive notifications each time he or she moves.

"The Alert System is a proactive way for us to notify citizens about who is residing in their community," FDLE Commissioner Gerald Bailey said. "It's just like having a deputy knock on your door. If there is one safety service Florida families should sign up for, this is it."

FDLE encourages citizens to use the Neighborhood Search feature on the site prior to signing up for alerts to see a listing of registered sexual offenders and predators currently living in their neighborhoods.
