

HELPING YOU LOCATE NON-CUSTODIAL PARENTS

Child support specialists work hard to find non-custodial parents, but their searches can often lead to a dead end. That's when the search should focus on jails and Departments of Correction.

The Facts

According to the U.S. Census Bureau

- Of the 13.7 million custodial parents in the United States, less than half receive the child support that is due to them
- More than $34 million in child support is owed each year
- Forty two percent of child support is owed by persons with no quarterly wage records. Out of that 42 percent, approximately 10 percent are incarcerated.
- 76 percent of child support payments are due to court order or child support agreements
- 25 percent of custodial mothers do not receive child support because the father is unable to pay

Features

- Locate non-custodial parents who are in custody
- Query thousands of criminal justice databases across the country at once
- Search for photos, employer information, and address at time of booking
- Receive automatic alerts when a NCP books into jail
- Set up watches for wanted persons or suspects

“This is honestly the best tool I have been given access to in more than ten years. Thanks so much for this tool, but most importantly, the children that I do this job for.”

– Terry Smitha, Family Support Specialist, Kentucky Division of Child Support
